STUFF

MURD'RING MINISTERS is published by Ron Brown, 1528 El Sereno Pl., Bakersfield, CA 93304. Phone: (805) 834-8409. MM is published approximately monthly utilizing 4 week deadlines and features games of postal DIPLOMACY and MACHIAVELLI. There are no current game openings but I will probably open some new slots when the next current game or two concludes. Subs cost $5.50 for 12 issues; 50¢ each if purchased in smaller increments.

No time as yet to get an all-redding issue out. Football season has three weeks left, however, so we should be able to do something about that once it's over. A couple of folks have inquired about how the season's been goin' for us . . . we have a young team this year - that means lots of sophomores and juniors in the starting lineup. The local paper here predicts how each school will do before the season opens. We were predicted to come in at 3-7. We are currently 4-3. Our last game was against North High, a team that had lost only once this year and was 3-0 in league play. We were 2-1 in league. We played them to a standstill; it was a really classic high school football game. We were behind 10-3 with 2:50 to go in the game. We scored a TD and elected to go for the win with a 2 point conversion. The attempted pass was on target but was batted down at the last instant by a North linebacker; so we lost 10-9. We are all but eliminated from any playoff possibilities, but we can still end up with a fine season. And next year all those underclassmen will be back . .

SCORPIO

(The Scorpion, 24 October to 22 November)

Men and women born under this sign have active minds, bodies, and police records. The Scorpion has a thing about sex. Crying out for love, but shoving it away when it comes. (Doesn't this choke you up?) Scorpion women are very giving by nature, which makes them much sought after by men who throw big parties. Scorpion men, on the other hand, should find happiness in the Armed Forces, since they are marvelous cheaters at craps and poker.

Scorpios live for sex, and while every good DIPLOMACY player is pretty fantastic in bed too, a single-minded devotion to sex at the expense of everything else means that the quality of one's game inevitably suffers. At the same time, they are compulsive winners and just as they hate to lose at love, they don't take kindly to being defeated -- much less stabbed -- in a game of DIPLOMACY. Watch out for the Scorpion in a temper tantrum after your stab -- he will do his best to get back anywhere! Crossgaming is very much a part of his standard repertoire.

GM COMMENT: Congratulations to Jeff Albrecht and Jerry Lucas on their draw. This game had several interesting features. Worthy of note: Steve Hartman-Char and I met Steve at the old Fresno Wargames West Con (summer of '78) and first made his acquaintance there. He was one of the first Dip players I ever met PTF as this was only the 2nd con I'd ever attended. (This was also where I met Grabar, Shatto, and St.Germain for the first time!) Steve told me that if I did start a Dipzine like I was talking about considering, he'd sub and play in it - so Steve became a playor when I began MD. I can't recall for sure but it seems like he played in another previous game and dropped from it, too. He showed up in Hawaii and wanted a game. Alas, he dropped, but while he was in I'm sure he added quite a bit to the game. I'm fairly sure the fake letters that were flying around were Steve's (at least initially). Tim Winger turned in one of the most consistent performances ever witnessed on a DipBoard, holding 5 SC & 8 out of the 9 game years! John Lesch was also an early player in these pages - John was my ally in my very first postal Dip game, 77IE. Richard Reed the original Russian resigned because he was "concerned with hurting feelings and making people unhappy with themselves." It's true, and I've said it all along! DIP is not for everyone; it takes a certain type. Rich just wasn't the "type". Andy Halls certainly was! He did a super job with Turkey building it up to 9 SC in 1904(!) but then dropped from the game and the Turkish Empire was never the same. I thought Jerry played a particularly shrewd and clever game with one of the toughest to play nations -- Austria.

((Con'd next pg.))

Austria - Jerry Lucas:

The game started out on an ominous note as I received correspondence from everyone except Italy, therefore, I suspected an attack on Trieste. England warned me of a Russian move to Galicia. To frustrate both attacks, I stayed in Trieste and blocked Russia. Luckily, I was able to get Turkey to agree to attack Italy. All worked out as expected and the game was started. This game was given additional dimension from fake letters. I received a fake letter from Russia. I originally thought that Germany was doing the fakes, then I thought that England was doing them. England accused me of spreading rumors to upset this negotiations, so I publicly confessed to the authorship of the fake letters even though I still didn't know who was doing them.

Initially, I was very concerned about the Russian. His letters and diplomacy were confusing. His early letters took a high-handed tone about telling me what to do. I blocked his first attempts at capturing Rumania by finally doing some faking myself. I prepared a fake letter from Russia to me, and then sent him a copy of it after making the blocking move. Meanwhile, Turkey was hell bent for leather after Italy. England warned me of Turkish intention for a Mediterranean campaign early in the game. The Italian failed to submit build moves in Winter '01 and was at a decided disadvantage with both Turkey and me headed for him.

Soon England was talking about attacking Germany who I had an early non-aggression pact with. I wrote two post cards to warn Germany. I guessed there was a Russian-English alliance forming. One post card went to Germany to warn him of English intentions. The other post card went to England via a friend in Florida where the Italian player also lived. This card told the Englishman that the Russian is leaking information about his attack. In his next letter to me, England expressed annoyance at Russia leaking his plans.

As a result, on the next move, Germany and England moved into position to eject Russia from both Norway and Sweden.

Things went easier from then on. The Italian player NRR'd in W'02 and Dick Martin failed to submit moves as a standby in Spring '03 ((he did but they arrived too late!-RB)) and was gone by the end of 1903. At this time Turkey was going strong and the Russian player resigned his position. Mary Beck took over for Russia and had difficulty establishing alliances and was down to 2 units by the end of 1904. She had just moved and changed jobs so being the generous player I am I helped her out by sending her post cards address to Ron Brown with suggested moves on them. All Mary had to do was sign them and mail them in. She was grateful for the help. I was eternally grateful. Sensing we were prolonging a bad situation, we arranged the elimination by 1907.

In 1906 Larry McCloud took over for my previously loyal Turkish ally. I had new problems. Could I trust him? We began an unsteady working relationship that was dictated partially by his strung out position, but after a few moves I was in position to stab and did in Spring '09. I did it with class though sending him a card warning of the stab from San Diego. I just forgot to tell him which game. Exit McCloud- enter Hugh who took over with 3 centers.

The game was a very enjoyable one. Ron Brown's gamesmastering was excellent even though he thinks a couple of promptly corrected minor mistakes were heinous. They were minor. The worst thing that happened in this game was the exit of Steve Hartman. Steve brought a great deal of fun and imagination ~~xxx~~ to the game and his exit took a lot away from the game.

Tim Winger's France is worthy of mention. Under bombardment continually from both England and Germany, Tim survived to the end. This is probably the most remarkable achievement in the game. I view my draw as the result of some fortuitous NMRs by neighbors, but Tim's success was all his own.

Jeff Albrecht and I were successful because of a shared philosophy about central powers. If Austria and Germany fight, we believe they will be short lived. I believe it was Clausewitz who said that whoever controls the heartland of Europe controls the world. Well, in DIPLOMACY that split control should not be fought over but shared. Had the original players stayed in the game I would have tried for the win but the game had gone its course.

As Germany, Jeff had a more difficult time than me. He is an excellent player and I look forward to playing with him in the future, perhaps as enemies?

Germany - Jeff Albrecht:

1981AY had a rather interesting beginning. As Germany, most of my beginning negotiations involved Steve Hartman (ENG) and Tim Winger (FRA). I was forced into an alliance with ENG when FRA decided to build two armies in 1901. Hartman proved to be a very interesting player.

((Con'd next pg.))

1981AY (Con'd)

He always had one or two plots going supplemented with one or two sub-plots and other trickery. The beginning of this game saw several forged letters to two or three players; does anyone want to confess, now, to who was behind the forged letters? I really suspect that Hartman was behind the forged letters, but I have never been 100% sure. (I did receive one forged letter from further east later in the game.)

From the ~~game~~ beginning, though, the Germans allied themselves with Austria. It was a strong alliance which proved to shift the balance of power to AUS and GER. At one time, the alliance wavered for a season or two; but the alliance was restored as Jerry Lucas got tired of listening to me beg -- I thought Tim Winger's cavalry had finally arrived for him. Jerry Lucas has my thanks for being the strong ally, a good sounding board, and an excellent correspondent; I have not worked with or ~~g~~ against a better DIPLOMACY player.

Tim Winger opted for war with Germany as his France built two armies in 1901. Germany's growth ~~back~~ happened slowly due to the war with France and happened mainly in the north. Tim Winger proved to be a very worthy opponent as his defenses were never down. You play an excellent game, Tim.

All in all, the game was very enjoyalbe; but my perspective may to tainted.

MACH #52 Press-

VENICE-MILAN: Greetings, my semi-Celtic neighbor! Hopefully you are aware of the red menace which waits at your borders, ill-fed and fueled by the mercenary bankers of the mountains. And, you would not be so unwise as to invade your good neighbour of the brown, myself. Take note that I extend the ungloved hand of friendship, but keep a good, strong sword by my side.

VENICE-FLORENCE: Greetings and felicitations also to those who also wear the brown, albeit of a lighter shade. We have great hopes that your eminences shall see fit to recall that we are your friends, distant though we appear by certain geography. As we have heard that you suffer greatly from crop failures, we take the liberty of offering you loans at a rate much lower than that of the portly barons of commerce to our north. Such loans can be extended for but little consideration, should you so desire.

VENICE-NAPLES: Greetings from others of commerce, your northern brethren! We wish to establish an exchange of information as to safe shipping routes in both our spheres and to nearby dangers.

VENICE-TURKEY: Let it be known that there are pirates to be found in the waters of the northern reaches of the Adriatic. Beware these areas, at risk of life and soul.

WRAP-UP (briefly)

Well, time to get these devils run off ASAP and in the mail (hopefully by tonight! I apologize for the lateness of this issue (about 2 weeks). Therefore, a deadline extension will be necessary... The new deadline of all games herein will be:

DECEMBER 16th, 1983

If you are a standby player please look here to see if you have a call:

You are asked to standby in game _____ on pg._____.

We've played two games since pg. 1 was typed. We won the first of those defeating East High 26-0. The following week we got trounced by one of the better teams in the state of California, West High by the score of 34-8. We didn't play nearly as well as we were capable although it's true we were pretty banged up from the last two weeks. Oh well, one last game this Friday . . .

Well, I'm going to stop right now so I can go run this off and get it to you! Goodbye!

If this is checked you owe some $ - please remit _____

You owe _____ for _____.
